CARLO BERTAZZO

Carlo Bertazzo is the General Manager of Edizione Srl, the holding company that the Benetton family used to diversify from the original clothing and retail business. Carlo has been in Edizione since 1994 and has played a key role in such diversification process over the years, managing the acquisitions of Autogrill and Generali Supermercati (1995), Atlantia (2000), a stake in Telecom Italia (2001), Gemina (2005, now called Aeroporti di Roma, merged into Atlantia in 2013) and Cellnex (2018). Carlo also contributed in the development of the partnerships that Edizione over time built with Italian and international investors.

He has had an active role in the management of the investments of Edizione, covering also an operating position as the CEO of the listed company Gemina between 2011 and 2013, and being a board member of several companies including TIM and Telecom Italia Media. He also ran the key disposals of the group, such as the sale of Generale Supermercati to Carrefour in 2000 and of World Duty Free to Dufry in 2015.

Carlo is currently a Board Member of Atlantia, Cellnex Telecom, Abertis Infraestructuras, Aeroporti di Roma and CEO of Sintonia.

Carlo started his career in Banca Commerciale Italiana (now Banca Intesa) in 1990 and in 1991 he moved to the investment department of IFI (now EXOR, the holding company of the Agnelli family) where he remained until 1994, when he joined Edizione.

Carlo holds a degree in Business and Administration Magna cum Laude from Ca' Foscari University in Venice.
